The sharks were unusually thick, but he never heeded them and pushed out. About and Mr. Solomon, the Anarchists' half way over they clustered about his counsel, sat side by side, with boat so thick as to impede his progress, and then he saw his peril. Clubbing his oars, he began striking them. The blows only seemed to irritate the fierce creatures and soon both oars were bitten off and dashed from his hands. The ferocious sea wolves scented blood, and leaped ten and twenty feet out of the water in their Attacks then began on the boat, and huge pieces were bitten out of the sides. It began to fill with water, and Hamilton became crazed with fear. Tearing off the seats, he struck at the sharks wildly, hop ing to frighten them off. One huge shark drove at the boat full tilt, and the shock threw Hamilton in the midst of the expectant tigers. A horrible shriek of agony rang out as he touched the water, and then nothing could be seen, for the fury of the mad creatures threw up vast sheets of water. An old fisherman, who witnessed the terrible scene from a distance, carried the news to the next station. A searching party was sent out, but only the fragments of the boat wer found. The shock is so great that no one has as yet volunteered to carry the mail over that route.

THE BALTIMORE ELECTION. The Exciting Municipal Contest Ended by the Election of the Democratic Candidate for Mayor by an Increased Majority. BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 27.—Considering the exciting campaign preceding it, yesterday's election for mayor passed off with unusual quietness. There were a few disturbances of small importance and one fatal shooting affray. In which Edward Allers, an Independent Democrat. shot and killed Edward Darley, one of the regulars. Allers' friends claim the shooting was accidental, but he was placed under arrest and will be charged with murder. The vote polled aggregated 65,075, of which Latrobe, Democrat. Republican, 30,435, gain of nearly 2,000 since the election for mayor two years ago. The newly elected got 34,469, and Bartlett, giving Latrobe a majority of 4,205, a Democratic City Council will consist of twelve Democrats and eight Republicans in the first branch, and seven Democrats and three Republicans in the second branch. Ghastly Merchandise. Louisville, Ky., Oct. 27 .- Yesterday eight barrels labelled "Merchandise," were received at the local depot of the Ohio & Mississippi railroad, consigned to the University of Medicine in this city. To a casual observer there was nothing strange in the appear ances of the packages as they were loaded on a wagon at the depot platform, but they contained eight dead bodies, all fit "subjects" for anatomy classes at the college. The bodies were procured in St. Louis and shipped to this city. Two of them were the remains o matured women, three were men, two were girls and one was a boy, apparently ten years of age. Bodies, such as these were, are worth about forty-five dollars

The Author of "See-Saw." NEW YORK, Oct. 26 .- The World's Detroit special says: It is ascertained that the author of the book "See-Saw," by One of 'Em, a story of department life in Washington, is Miss Cleveland, a second cousin of the President, who has a Government position in Washington. The characters of the book are but thinly-disguised Michiganders under assumed names. The villain of the book is no less a personage than Governor Swineford f Alaska, who (in the book) is represented to have jilted the lady to whom he was engaged and married another. The President is also introduced into the book, and the heroine is represented as stumping for him during the last campaign.

THE ANARCHISTS.

Argument on the Motion for a Writ of Error in Progress.

The United States Supreme Court Room Washington Crowded with an Interested Throng of Lawyers and Others to Hear the Speeches.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Long before the hour of the opening of the doors of the United States Supreme Court room to-day a large crowd had gathered in the corridors patiently waiting the opening of the court room, and an opportunity to hear the argument in the appeal of the condemned Chicago Anarchists, which is to be heard to-day. The court assembled promptly at noon, and at that time the dingy and cramped court room was crowded with lawyers and spectators. General Butler, Roger A. Pryor, Captain Black their law books piled in front of them, ready, and apparently anxious to commence the effort to secure the interference of the court in behalf of their clients, while near them sat Attorney-General Hunt, District Attorney Grinnell and others representing the State of Illinois, awaiting the commencement of the attack on the judgment of the Supreme Court of their State. Spectators and lawyers were doomed to a disappointment, however, for the court, after admitting several members to practice, took up an-five minutes past one o'clock, when Chief Justice Waite announced that the court was ready to take up the Anarchists' case. At once there was a hush in the court room, and a moment of almost breathless silence. General Butler rose and stated his connection with the case, that he represented two of the condemned Anarchists, and that his colleague, John Randolph Tucker, was ready to open the argument in behalf of the petitioners. Then followed a moment's consultation about the time to be accorded counsel. Attorney-General Hunt of Illinois said that, not knowing the scope the opposing counsel's argument might he could not say how take. much time the State's council would require to answer. The court decided the matter by allowing each side three hours. and without further delay Mr. Tucker rose and began his argument, directing his efforts to the question of jurisdiction raised by the appeal for the writ of error. He did not propose to go over the whole record of the case and show the grounds for reversal of the judgment of the Illinois court, but to show that this was a case within the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, which justified the issuance of the writ. The practice of the Supreme Court, he insisted, showed that it had not been asked to find reasons for not issuing writs of error, but that it had been diligent in finding reasons on which to base their jurisdiction to issue writs. All that was necessary to do in this case was to show a possible conflict between the State and Federal statutes, and this he proposed to case would warrant the court to issue the was Mr. Tucker closed his argument at halfpast two with a very eloquent and impassioned appeal for justice for these men, who, whether Anarchists or not, were entitled to the constitutional protection and intervention which they sought to obtain for them.

The main contention of counsel for the Anarchists, as brought out in Roger A. Pryor's argument before the court the other day and Mr. Tucker's opening argument, is that by the Illinois jury law and by the action of the Illinois court, the Anarchists were convicted of a capital offense without due process of law, contrary to the guarantees the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution; that due process of law implies and requires a trial by an impartial jury; that the Illinois statute makes competent a juror with a preconceived and present opinion as to the guilt of the accused; that it is not therefore "due process of law" which abridges "the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States," by denying the accused "the right to a trial by an impartial jury and is therefore unconstitutional. Attorney-General Hunt, of Illinois, in his brief submitted to the court and by his writ it must appear from the records that there was a Federal question involved, and that such question was raised and de cided in the State court. He denied that these conditions were met. The record did not show that any Federal question is involved. The prohibitions, he contended contained in the first ten amendments to the Constitution, are limitations on the powers of the Federal Government and not upon the States, and so far as the Anarchists rely upon any thing contained in those amendments that they have no standing in the Supreme Court of the United States. The Fourteenth amendment, he argued, was equally foreign to any right, privilege or immunity claimed by the petitioners. That amendment declared that no State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States, nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty or property without due process of law, nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. But the record showed that the complaint is not that the State has made or is enforcing a law which deprives the petitioners of any of the privileges or immunities guaranteed by that section, but that they are deprived of rights by an erroneous construction of law placed lupon it by the trial court of the State. The petitioners did not claim in the Supreme Court at Ottawa that the Illinois jury law was repugnant to the Constitution, treaties or laws of the United States; nor that the authority of the State Supreme Court was exercised under it, but that the law was valid, and that the court exercised its power in violation of that law. The Anarchists were tried in the courts of the State, under the laws of the State, and that constituted "due process of law." "Due precess of law" meant in accordance with the laws of the land. Coming to the question of the competency of the Illinois juror with preconceived opinion as to the guilt of the accused. Attorney-General Hunt insisted that the personnel of the jury which tried the accused could not properly be submitted to the court or be considered by it in this proceeding. He defended the jury laws of Illinois. They were constitutional and in keeping with the changed condition of the laws. In these days of newspapers and telegraphs it was difficult to find intelligent men who were not familiar with morrow, Mr. Hunt not having finished his The proceedings in the Supreme Court to-day in the Anarchist appeal were sol-emn. All the judges paid close attention to the arguments of counsel, and several times interrupted them to ask questions. Mr. Tucker's address was a surprise to many. He is a graceful and easy speaker, and his address from first to last was eloquent and impassioned throughout. Attorney-General Hunt made a clear, calm and forcible argument, dealing only with the cold abstract propositions of law involved in the case. He will conclude his argument to-morrow, and will probably be followed by Judge Grinnell, who will speak for an hour, leaving it for Goneral Butler, to present the closing arguments.

A CHOLERA SCARE.

Chicago Invaded by a Band of Italian Immigrants From Palermo, a Cholera-Infected Port—The Health Authorities In-

CHICAGO, Oct. 27 .- The health department was thrown into a state of excitement this morning by the receipt of the following dispatch from the Surgeon-General of the Marine Hospital Service: DR. DE WOLFF, COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH, CHICAGO:—The New York Telegram of yester-day contains names of eighteen Italians arrived at New York on the steamer Independen October 15, left for Chicago on the 16th. All but two passengers were from Palermo, a [Signed] Dr. De Wolff replied as follows:

HAMILTON, SURGEON-GENERAL, WASHINGrow:-Telegram received. Will not the United States authorities take notice of the monstrous wrong of quarantine officers forwarding immigrants from infected ports directly into the interior without notice? OSCAR DE WOLFF. Dr. De Wolff received the dispatch at 0:30 and acted upon the matter. A messenger was sent for Dr. Re, the Italian physician, with orders to search the Italan quarters for the infected immigrants. "If we find them," said Dr. DeWolff, all we can do will be to get possession of their clothing and fumigate it thoroughly and confine the Italians in close quarters. Every precaution will be taken to keep such immigrants away from here. The health officer was very wroth and handled the New York authorities without gloves for not acquainting him with the facts before. This afternoon Dr. Ree, the Italian physician sent by the Health Department o the Italian district of the city to find the immigrants who arrived in New York by the supposed cholera-infested steamer Independente, and afterward came here, succeeded in locating twelve of them, all of whom were well and at work. One had gone to New Orleans, and still another had run away from his wife, no one knowing where he had gone. Dr. Ree expects to find the others to-morrow. Dr. De Wolff, the health officer, has decided to have the clothing and baggage of all the immigrants thoroughly fumigated and disinfected.

THE LAST RITES.

The Remains of E. B. Washburne Finally

Ceremonies. GALENA, Ill., Oct. 27 .- The remains of Hon. E. B. Washburne arrived here at on the reformers' aid, and were confident writ giving the plaintiffs the benefit to Turner Hall, where they are now lying in state. The hall is appropriately draped in black, the National colors being used in connection with the imperial flag of Germany as the only bit of brightness visible, except the flowers. The emblems presented in Chicago have been materially added to by local contributions, and the floral tributes are profuse in quantity and taste. A detachment from Company I, Third Regiment I. N. G., is acting as a guard of honor. A continuous stream of citizens is passing through the hall for a last look at Galena's distinguished son. The funeral services took place at three o'clock at Turner Hall, which was crowded to the utmost capacity. Dr. Smith's address was an eloquent and fitting tribute to the life and public services of Mr. Washburne. At the conclusion of the services at the hall a procession was formed and the remains escorted to Greenwood. It was one of the most imposing sights ever witnessed in this city, and included Company "I," I. N. G., which acted as a guard of honor. The local pall-bearers were all old and in-timate friends of Mr. Washburne. The interment took place on the Washburne and Gratiot families' lot, where now rests the remains of Mr. and Mrs. Washburne and two sons. The lot is as yet unmarked, except by two or three plain slabs, but oral argument to-day, opposed the grantit is to be further beautified by a granite ing of the writ of error and replied to the shaft which Mr. Washburne contracted points. > Grand Army Celebration. CINCINNATI, Oct. 28 .- Fine weather farored the parade of the Grand Army men of Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky here yesn., with General A. Hickenlooper as grand marshal. It is estimated that 5,000 men were in line. Decorations along the route were abundant, and the streets were crowded with spectators.

After the procession was reviewed a meeting was held at the Highland House, where Mayor Smith made an address of welcome. Mr. D. C. Putnam, commander of the Department of Ohio, responded. He was followed by Department Commanders Bowman of Kentucky, and Carnahan of The Sharpe Appeal Under Argument. ALBANY, N. Y., Oct. 27 .- A big audience was present in the Court of Appeals when the case of the People vs. Jacob Sharpe was called. When Judge Ruger called the case Mr. Nicoll rose and asked that the usual time of two hours for argument be extended. Mr. Cochran, for Sharpe, asked that the time be extended to such a length as Mr. Nicoll thought fit. Chief-Justice Ruger said that the court thought four hours was long enough for an loral argument. He ordered the appelants to proceed. Mr. Cochran then began the case for Mr. Sharpe. Mr. Paine followed, also for Sharpe. Mr. Nicoll then presented the COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 27.-Through a trusty prisoner the warden of the Ohio penitentiary was informed of a wholesale. delivery plan for last night in time to prevent its success. A life man had made a key that would unlock the five hundred cells in the new cell house. Another prisoner had sawed out several bars in a window through which escape to the ground in the yard was to be made. Ladders for scaling the walls were at hand. The warden permitted the plan to proceed until the leader was unlocking the doors with his keys, when he was seized and made to confess the plan in full and name the leaders.
